

PROJECT TURKEY

The Pilgrim Fathers found the wild turkey in Massachusetts "in great flocks"—it was so important to them as a food bird that without it there might not have been that first Thanksgiving.

The wild turkey is found only in North and Central America, and its range used to be from Mexico north to New Hampshire. But with the coming of settlers, agriculture and new land uses the turkeys began to disappear from many areas. Their habitats were destroyed and their populations decimated by over-hunting.

In Massachusetts, for example, the wild turkey was extinct by the mid-nineteenth century. But in 1959, the Massachusetts Cooperative Wildlife Unit and the Division of Fisheries and Game initiated a project to restore the turkey to the Commonwealth. The method used was translocation: wild birds were brought in from other states and set free, with later trapping and releasing for further dispersal. The experiment has been a great success. The statewide population in the spring of 1970 was estimated at 170, and the wild turkey is considered firmly established once more.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED for it, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

TO STOP A RUNAWAY

Dear Helen:
My girl friend who is 15, met this older guy who wants her to come and live in a hippie commune. She thinks that would be the greatest, as she has fallen madly in love with him and believes everything he says. Helen, she's an immature little dummy, and also very stubborn. I've talked until I'm hoarse and she doesn't listen. I tell her running away is dangerous, but she says he'll carry a knife. Then I asked her what if he leaves her, and she answered, "Then I'll carry a knife." How can I get through to a girl who hates school, her parents, and is hooked on being "free"? —WORRIED

Dear Worried:

This girl needs more help than a teen can give. Confide in an adult you trust and let him take it from there. —H.

Dear Helen:

Is it true that the fella who goes in for weight lifting and body building is really fearful of his manhood and trying to hide his sissiness under a lot of bulging muscles?

I've known several guys that walked on their hands at the beach and looked like Charles Atlas' grandsons, but it turns out they don't like girls very well. Or if they date us, it's mostly to make us feel miserable. They are so in love with themselves they don't waste any on others. Would you advise steering clear of the muscle-boys? LOOKING FOR A REAL MAN

Dear L.F.A.R.M.:

I advise against generalizations! Muscle culture doesn't always rule out manliness any more than brawn rules out brain. (But a little observation will soon separate the guys from the gays). —H.

Dear Helen:

I'm a 16-year-old boy, who fell for a great girl, but another guy came along, and all of a sudden she had his ring. I guess my trouble was I didn't make it official soon enough. We dated two months and I didn't ask her to go steady. She liked me then— at least she acted so.

Well, I had to teach this guy, so we had a big fight over her. Now she won't speak to me. She thinks I am immature and a non-gentleman, while this dude treats her like gold. He has a job and can take her out while I'm on the football team and have to practice, get in early, etc.

Whenever he takes her to a game, I don't play so well.

I know I made a lot of mistakes, but what can I do to get her back? —H.C.I.

Dear H.:

Try a little "suave". Send her a single red rose every day for a week (singles won't break you), with low key (not mushy) notes attached. Then call her up "just to talk because I felt lonesome tonight" (that really gets 'em); next "stop by" her house, being especially nice to her parents.

If she liked you once, she may still like you again, especially when you polish up that new image. —H.

A Play's the Thing for Barry Nelson

By ROGER DOUGHTY

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Much like the passenger pigeon, another rare bird—the Broadway actor, sometimes known as the matinee idol—is rapidly becoming all but extinct. Barry Nelson, one of the rare birds still around, thinks he knows why.

"All the actors have flown away to California," says Barry, who hasn't. "Once there, most of them get stagnant faster than their swimming pools. When I first started in this business, there were Broadway actors, but now they're pulling guys in off the streets to do plays. That's one of the things wrong with Broadway today."

One of the things that's right with Broadway is that Nelson is usually there. He'll be back Nov. 30, co-starring with Carol Channing in "Four on a Garden," a new Abe Burrows vehicle.

Now and then Nelson takes time off for a movie or to run down to Haiti to do some art buying. ("The artists are sensational and it's the only island left in the Caribbean that isn't totally populated with bellhops," he says). But most of the time he's working in New York.

"Everybody loves success," he admits, "but there have been times when I've done a play, even though I knew it wasn't going to have a long run, just because I liked what it had to say."

"Cactus Flower" was one of the Nelson successes. "I did more to upgrade the image of the dentist than any man in history," he smiles, showing no cavities. His last effort, "The Engagement Baby," folded after two nights. Everybody thinks "Four on a Garden" will do considerably better.

Nelson credits "the pulse of New York" and divorce with keeping him on the East Coast most of the time.

"I love it here, but I might have gone the Hollywood route myself," he admits.

Moon Walker Discounts Soviet Shot

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the first anniversary of his Apollo 12 walk on the moon, astronaut Alan L. Bean today cautioned against granting the Soviet lunar robot triumph excessive credit.

"Don't underestimate our ability to use unmanned as well as manned spacecraft," he said. "Let us not be so concerned about what the other guy is doing with unmanned spacecraft until he touches what we have done with manned exploration. He is not coming close yet."

Bean summarized some of the things the U.S. has accomplished on the moon which the Russians could not do with their remotely controlled rolling vehicle, and added:

"We were in the manned business on the moon for 31 hours and less than that on Apollo 11. "Once man left the moon, we have had unmanned equipment operating there for a year, and there is no reason to believe it won't go on for another year."

Bean recalled that on Apollo 12 the spacecraft commander, Charles Conrad, Jr., had to hammer on the casing of the station's fuel element in order to get it loose and place it in the generator. Without this human assist the whole experiment would have failed.

Bean also noted the Apollo 12 magnetometers had to be placed 100 to 300 feet from all equipment in order to take accurate measurements of the very light magnetic fields.

The Apollo seismometer had to have a good solid contact with the ground, so he and Conrad dug a hole, placed a stool in it and then put the seismometer on the level base—something that would have been extremely difficult to do automatically.

Gordon Swann, Apollo 12 representative for the Geological Survey, said a new phenomenon—small grooves or linear troughs—unnoticed in 90,000 moon photographs taken by the unmanned Surveyor craft, was observed.

Barry Nelson

I've looked and I know that there isn't. As long as you go on thinking it's there, the longer you miss the nice things in life—the smell of a bakery, the laughter of friends, things like that.

"It's enough to have the rainbow without worrying about the pot of gold. To do otherwise is nymphomania of the soul."

If "Four on a Garden" is a hit, Barry can have his rainbow and a nice hunk of the pot, too.

Today's hand illustrates two important principles of play. The first one is that, when you have no play for your contract, give your opponents a chance to go wrong. The second is that, when both sides play the same suit, one of them is making a mistake.

There is nothing wrong with South's three no-trump contract except that, after the heart opening, there is no play for it. Even with the spade finesse, he can make only eight tricks.

South counted up these eight tricks and decided to ask his opponents for help. South won the first trick with the ace of hearts and led the suit right back. The three-spot lead looked like a fourth best of a four- or five-card suit, so South wasn't afraid to find himself losing more than four heart tricks.

West put up his jack of hearts, looked hard at South, JACOBY MODERN, completely explained in an illustrated, 128-page book is available through this newspaper for only $1. muttered something about Greeks bearing gifts and then cashed the rest of his hearts.

South let a spade and two diamonds go from dummy and a spade and two clubs from his hand, while East discarded the jack of diamonds. West responded to the very apparent signal by leading a diamond and South went right up with dummy's ace.

Four rounds of clubs followed. East discarded the deuce of spades on the third club, but was in real trouble on the last one. He couldn't afford to jettison his king of diamonds, so he let the 10 of spades go.

South, who had discarded the nine of diamonds on the third club, chucked his queen of diamonds, finessed the spades and made his ninth trick with the spade nine.

The modern automobile will carry you through rain, sleet, snow and gloom of night, asking little but oil in the engine and gas in the tank. But at some point in the life of every car, it will roll to a wheezing stop and refuse to go. At that point you are probably going to need the services of a tow truck.

In one way, seeking a tow is like buying any other service. You call a garage, request assistance and pay the resulting charge. But psychologically, it's a lot different from, say, hiring a man to paint your porch.

If you're stranded out on some lonely road, perhaps with a car full of tired kids, you're apt to view a tow-truck operator more as an angel of mercy than as just another businessman. Human nature being what it is, however, some operators are not above socking it to you because of your plight.

Your best defense is to be aware of possible problems and to be ready to nip potential overcharges in the bud:

Do You Need A Tow?—If the problem is something like a busted fan belt or a bent fender that rubs against a tire, you don't need a tow. What you need is some first aid that will get you rolling again. If you realize this, describe the problem on the phone. The driver can then bring equipment with him and make repairs on the spot.

Check on Charges—Before the driver hooks up, ask about rates. They should be based on a hoisting fee, plus so much per mile. You won't be in much of a position to bargain, of course, but you will look like less of a patsy if you display an interest early.

Ask Where Car Is Going—Sounds obvious, right? But occasionally a trucker will try to tow a vehicle to a garage some distance away to boost the fee. The excuse is usually that nearer places are closed or that needed parts are not available elsewhere. The operator isn't likely to insist, however, if he senses your suspicion.

List All Damages—If you've been involved in a collision, list all the damage done, and make sure the driver knows you are doing it. Towed cars have been known to arrive at shops bearing more dents than they had when they were towed away. Some are caused by carelessness, others by design.

Watch His Technique—Fast towing with the front wheels elevated is hard on a car with an automatic transmission. Most trucks carry dollies to put under the rear wheels of the towed car. It is also possible to disconnect the car's drive shaft, but this is not an easy job. Hoisting the car's rear wheels and towing it backward is suitable for short hauls at low speed.

It will ease the pain of towing slightly if you know that part of the charge will be paid by someone else. Most auto clubs offer road service as a benefit of membership, but the cheapest coverage is apt to be a simple addition to your auto insurance policy.

Arkadelphia Wins Berth in Finals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bill Vining, with a little help from his friends, eliminated Rogers from the Class AA high school playoffs Friday night.

Vining, the Arkadelphia quarterback, threw two touchdown passes and scored twice as the Badgers whipped Rogers 27-7. Arkadelphia will meet Stuttgart next Friday night at Little Rock in the Class AA finals. Stuttgart crushed Pine Bluff 40-13 as Ellis Berry and Doyle Cross scored two touchdowns each.

Rison plastered Marked Tree, the top-ranked team in Class A, 33-6, in the Class A playoffs. Rison will meet the winner of tonight's game between Alma and Prescott.

Luxora, a 14-8 overtime winner over Norphlet, and Magnet Cove, a 28-8 winner over Danville, will meet in the Class B finals next weekend.

Rogers jumped off to a 7-0 lead over Arkadelphia on Alan Davidson's four-yard scoring run. Vining, a senior, scored on runs of two and 16 yards as the Badgers gained a 14-7 halftime advantage. He threw two fourth-quarter scoring passes — a 37-yarder to Gary Anderson and a four-yarder to Scott Thomas on the final play of the game.

Cross scored on runs of two and 18 yards as Berry went 11 and five yards for his touchdowns in Stuttgart's victory.

Steve Winston carried 36 times for 173 yards and scored three touchdowns and speedster Ken Martin picked up 100 yards on 11 carries to spark Rison.

Dennis Helms scored three touchdowns and Randy Crumby tossed two touchdown passes to move Magnet Cove past Danville. Helms scored on runs of seven and 20 yards and caught a 15-yard scoring pass from Crumby.

Luxora and Norphlet were deadlocked 8-8 at the end of regulation time and neither team could score during a 10-minute overtime period. Grover Stracener's five-yard scoring run four minutes deep into the second overtime finally settled the issue.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Someone in the NCAA office asked how anyone could possibly pick Leon Burns as an All-American. Burns is the 27-year-old running back for California State College at Long Beach.

"Well," came the reply, "he led the small colleges in rushing last year, and is even ahead of that pace this year, even though he missed most of the first three games with a sprained ankle. In fact, he scored 15 touchdowns in the next four games."

"But," insisted the NCAA employee, "he's an ex-convict. How can you put him on your All-American team?"

"How can you leave him off?" was the response.

Mitchell Acquitted of Murder

By ROBERT HEARD
Associated Press Writer
FT. HOOD, Tex. (AP) — S.Sgt. David Mitchell was acquitted in the first My Lai case to reach a court-martial verdict.

Mitchell, 30, a 10-year Army veteran, had been charged with assault with intent to murder by shooting at 30 unarmed civilians at the Vietnamese hamlet on March 16, 1968.

Nine other GIs are charged in connection with the incident that occurred during a combat swing through My Lai.

"I always thought the Army was a great outfit. Now, I know it," said Mitchell, son of a Baptist minister who lives in St. Francisville, La.

A military jury of seven officers, including six Vietnam veterans, returned the verdict Friday night after six hours and 50 minutes of deliberations.

Mitchell was a squad leader in Company C, the same outfit in which Lt. William L. Calley Jr., was a platoon leader. Calley is being court-martialed at Ft. Benning, Ga., on charges he murdered 102 civilians.

The Army is still processing charges against eight other members of the Americal Division.

When the jury returned to announce its verdict, Mitchell stood at attention and saluted.

"S.Sgt. David Mitchell, this court has found you not guilty," said Col. Francis Giacomozzi, president of the court.

Mitchell's wife, Rosa, leaped to her feet and shouted, "Oh!"

"Sit down in the courtroom," ordered Col. George R. Robinson, the military judge, who banged his gavel until the woman was seated.

Mitchell returned to his chair and slumped down into it.

His attorney, Ossie Brown, strode past him, patting Mitchell on the shoulders.

Mitchell had taken the stand in his own defense. With tears streaming down his cheeks, he testified Thursday, "I shot at no one."

Eight other defense witnesses testified that Mitchell was not at a ditch in My Lai where the Army charged he fired at huddled men, women and children.

The prosecution presented three witnesses. Two said they saw Mitchell fire his rifle into the ditch. One said he saw Mitchell raise his rifle but neither saw nor heard a report from it. None said they saw any bullets strike the people huddled in the ditch.

LETHAL LAUNCH of a Falcon missile (near nose of plane) by an Air National Guard F-102 fighter interceptor resulted in a "kill" of a simulated enemy bomber. Action took place during Aerospace Defense Command's weapons meet at Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla. Nine teams from the United States and Canada competed in a test of the continent's ability to defend itself against bomber attack.

Ten states now offer voting rights to citizens under 21. In the Nov. 3 elections, voters in Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska and Wyoming approved reducing the minimum voting age, joining Alaska, Georgia, Hawaii and Kentucky which had previously lowered the voting age for youths. Map shows states in which below-21 voting age has been set.

Major Illness Insurance Bill Criticized

By G.C. THELEN Jr.
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration, all but promising to submit a similar plan of its own next year, has sharply criticized a Democrat's major-illness insurance proposal as hasty and ill-considered.

Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana sprang his plan Thursday and said the Finance Committee, which he heads, will vote on it next week. The plan would have the government pay 80 percent of medical costs over $2,000 a year or of hospitalization beyond 60 days, at an estimated cost of $2.5 billion a year paid for by increased Social Security taxes.

Secretary Elliot L. Richardson of Health, Education and Welfare, whose department is drafting legislation along similar lines, said Long's proposal "has not received anything like adequate consideration."

He noted there have been no public hearings on Long's plan, and said they are needed to examine its impact on other health insurance programs and proposals.

"The administration is now developing an over-all health strategy for submission to the 92nd Congress" next year, Richardson said through an aide.

One HEW draft proposal, which health officials say has strong White House appeal, would pay all costs over $2,000 or 60 days, not just 80 percent as in Long's plan. It would also be paid for out of increased Social Security taxes and would cost an estimated $3 billion—$500 million more than Long's.

Officials say the White House views the plan as a political counter to Democratic-sponsored blueprints for cradle-to-grave national health insurance.

The administration contends universal insurance would be unworkable, inflationary and cost an estimated $77 billion a year.

Nixon has already promised to introduce in January a legislative program of government-subsidized health insurance for all poor families with children.

Ouachita River Group to Meet

During the meeting, Rep. David Pryor, D-Ark., will report on the progress of the Ouachita River development program.

Red Tape Has Rescinded Pesticide Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, stumbling over a classic snarl of bureaucratic red tape, has rescinded its recent pesticides ban.

At the urging of another federal agency, the department issued an order six weeks ago banning the repeated use of pesticides on farm crops without special permission after Aug. 31, 1971.

Then it discovered the problem was under review elsewhere in the federal bureaucracy and that a new environmental agency will inherit the whole mess next month.

"We had to placate the Interior Department by issuing the original order," said a USDA official. "But then it dawned on us that all these questions are under review anyway and will not be completed as soon as expected."

Since the review was taking into account repeated use anyway, the ban actually was a duplication and unneeded, said a spokesman.

G.G. Rohrer, in charge of pesticides regulations, said the first order "was not intended to be a notice of cancellation of any registration nor of refusal to register any product."

Instead, he said, its intent was "merely to advise the public and the industry regarding matters now under consideration."

Pesticides included in the original notice were DDT, DDD, dieldrin, aldrin, endrin, heptachlor, toxaphene, BHC and chlordane.

The revised notice said the department had hoped to complete its review of these pesticides by next Aug. 31, but probably would miss the deadline for all except DDT.

Correction Board Asked to Resign

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Rep. James Linder of West Helena has written members of the state Board of Correction asking them to resign so that Gov-elect Dale Bumpers can appoint a new board.

Linder said his request was not intended to cast a reflection on the current board members, all appointees of Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, or to challenge their sincerity.

He said in the letter he wanted Bumpers to have the same opportunity Rockefeller did to appoint his own board "to offer guidance and direction in the operation of the state penitentiary."

Linder observed that members of the old board who were appointees of former Gov. Orval E. Faubus had resigned after Rockefeller took office.

"I believe he (Bumpers) should be given a free hand to render new guidance and direction in prison reform," Linder wrote.

Bumpers said he would like to meet the current board members before he commented on the letter.

Alumni Group Seeking More School Aid

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Alumni Council has been formed by the state-supported colleges and universities to drum up alumni and public support for additional revenues for the schools.

The organization was established in September and October by the public relations men of the various colleges and universities, according to William W. Hughes of Fayetteville, assistant to Dr. David W. Mullins, president of the University of Arkansas.

The organization supports the recommendations of the Commission on Coordination of Higher Educational Finance, Hughes said. The state's schools are receiving $3.9 million this fiscal year.

Group Suing to Ban Toys Deemed Unsafe

By G. DAVID WALLACE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumers' organization threatened today to sue if eight toys the organization says can burn, lacerate or electrocute children aren't immediately banned from the market.

Consumers Union, which does its own product testing, accused the Department of Health, Education and Welfare of disregarding its obligations under a new Toy Safety Act.

Morris Kaplan, the union's technical director, said parents are going into the pre-Christmas toy-buying season without assurances the toys they choose are safe.

In a statement prepared for a news conference, Kaplan listed eight toys the union tested and found hazardous. Four of them were identified by HEW's Food and Drug Administration last Friday as toys the agency intends to ban after a 15-day period allowed for public comment.

The FDA action was the first move toward using powers granted by the 11-month-old law. The FDA also said it is undertaking a pre-Christmas survey of toys.

But Kaplan called the FDA announcement misleading, noting the 15-day delay will permit the toys to remain on the market well into the Christmas season.

The FDA has said it would ban Protect O Product, a musical toy rattle distributed by Reliance Products Corp. of Woonsocket, R.I.; Party Pack Five Fringed Balloon Squawkers, distributed by American Party Favors of Pittston, Pa.; Jarts, a lawn dart game distributed by R.B. Jarts, Inc. of South Glen Falls, N.Y.; and Wasp Cap Gun, distributed by Ohio Art Co. of Bryan, Ohio.

The Consumers Union list included not only the cap gun, balloon squawker and dart game, but also Etch-a-Sketch, distributed by the same firm which distributes the cap gun; Empire Little Lady Oven, distributed by the Metal Ware Co. of Two Rivers, Wis.; the Rapco Castright Metal Casting Sets, distributed by Rapco Toy Co., Chicago, Ill.; Suzy Homemaker Super Grill, distributed by Topper Toy Corp. of Elizabeth, N.J.; Winnie-the-Pooh Crib Mobile, distributed by Sears, Roebuck and Co.

Kaplan said the National Commission on Product Safety had branded the Etch-a-Sketch, the toy oven and the metal casting set as dangerous in its final report last June.

The commission complained the Etch-a-Sketch had an easily shattered glass cover plate. The oven produced surface temperatures of up to 300 degrees. The casting set not only produced surface temperatures of up to 600 degrees, it also constituted a shock hazard, the commission said.

Kaplan said the toy grill also presented a shock hazard and the crib mobile had a bracket which could be easily broken by an 8-month-old infant, leaving dangerous jagged points.

Matching Each Other's Memories Makes Some Feel Warm and Akin

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no finer fun than playing the game of "remember when." The more we can match each other's memories the more warmly akin we feel. You can play the game pretty well yourself if you can look and remember when—

Justice Clark Enters Into Controversy

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defending his son Ramsey as "not any Mr. Milquetoast," former Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark has suggested it may be time for J. Edgar Hoover to retire as director of the FBI.

"We're both getting pretty old," the 71-year-old Clark said of the 75-year-old Hoover Thursday in a telephone interview from San Francisco. "That's why I retired."

At the same time, Clark, who is also a former attorney general, called Hoover "an old friend" and said "he's done a very fine job" as head of the FBI.

Clark was asked to comment on Hoover's description of Ramsey Clark as a "jellyfish." The FBI director's blast, in a Washington Post interview Tuesday, followed the younger Clark's allegation in a just-published book that Hoover is overly concerned with his own reputation.

"He's always spoken up," Tom Clark said of his son. "I've never known him to dodge any issue."

As attorneys general, both Clark and Hoover's boss, though the FBI and its director have considerable autonomy.

"When I was there I had some problems, too, but I never aired them publicly," the former Justice said of his relations with the FBI. He headed the Justice Department from 1945 to 1949.

Clark left the Supreme Court in 1967 after Ramsey Clark had been named attorney general. Since then, he has headed various projects to improve judicial administration and has served occasionally on other federal courts. He is in San Francisco presiding at an antitrust trial.

Pollution by Autos May Go to High Court

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision appears imminent on a drive by 17 states to have the Supreme Court consider their suit charging the major auto manufacturers with conspiring to delay the development of anti-smog devices.

The states want the court to order General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors to equip all their cars built since 1953 with devices that would cut down the 67.3 million tons of carbon monoxide released annually from auto exhausts.

That would mean going to work on an estimated 85 to 100 million used cars. Even if the court agrees to consider the matter, such an order is a long way off, however. First the 17 states, headed by Washington, must persuade the justices the Supreme Court is the only suitable forum to settle the suit.

Laird, who aides said spent much of the night in his office while the attacks continued, said, "These protective reactive missions are designed to protect the lives of pilots flying unarmed reconnaissance missions ... and pilots flying missions associated with interdiction of North Vietnamese military supplies throughout Southern Laos moving toward South Vietnam."

At the time the statement was issued (3 a.m. EST), a Defense spokesman refused to discuss specific targets, indicating the attacks were still in progress. But the Radio Hanoi report said they began about 2:30 a.m. Hanoi time and lasted more than an hour.

The Pentagon spokesman said the use of the term "limited duration" was intended to mean that the strikes do not represent a general resumption of the bombing of North Vietnam, halted more than two years ago on Nov. 1, 1968.

Dr. Pauling

Says Cure of

Cold Simple

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Linus Pauling, the scientist who won two Nobel prizes, says an effective cure for the common cold is as simple as a walk to the corner store.

Vitamin C can do the job, but people have not been making proper use of it, he said Thursday.

If they did, there would be no more colds, he said at a news conference to discuss his book, "Vitamin C and the Common Cold," scheduled for publication Dec. 7.

Pauling offered the following prescription for cold sufferers: "Take about one-half level teaspoon of the powder form of ascorbic acid—vitamin C—each day until the cold disappears."

When a person first catches a cold, he said, taking about one gram of ascorbic acid each hour will chase the discomfort away. Pauling said continued suffering with colds "is explained by the fact that in the past, the medical student has been taught little about vitamins and nutrition."

"Fortunately, physicians are now beginning to recognize the value of the vitamins," he added.

U.S. Planes in Strike on North

WASHINGTON (AP) — American jets launched today what is believed to be the heaviest air attack on North Vietnam in seven months, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird announced.

Laird said the warplanes hit missile and antiaircraft positions "in response to attacks on our unarmed reconnaissance aircraft."

In a statement released at the Pentagon, Laird termed the attacks against the Southern Panhandle of North Vietnam "limited duration protective reaction air strikes."

His statement pinpointed the strikes well south of Hanoi and the port city of Haiphong. That was in contrast to an earlier Radio Hanoi claim that waves of bombers attacked close to and south of Haiphong.

The Radio Hanoi report monitored in Hong Kong said three U.S. jets and one American helicopter were shot down. But Laird's statement made no mention of any losses.

The North Vietnamese radio report also claimed a prisoner of war camp where there were "a number of U.S. prisoner of war casualties" was among the areas hit.

The attacks followed by just over a week the downing of an unarmed American RF-4 reconnaissance jet about 100 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone. Two crewmen were lost.

The loss evoked a stern warning from Laird that "we remain ready to take appropriate action in response to attacks on our unarmed reconnaissance aircraft."

Laird, who aides said spent much of the night in his office while the attacks continued, said, "These protective reactive missions are designed to protect the lives of pilots flying unarmed reconnaissance missions ... and pilots flying missions associated with interdiction of North Vietnamese military supplies throughout Southern Laos moving toward South Vietnam."
